

To assure ASTM NCATT-certified technicians remain competent in their area of certification, a process has been established to collect data, on a periodic basis that they remain engaged in the occupation either through active employment in the field or as educators.

For those certifications issued prior to January 1, 2022, the certifications will remain valid until January 1, 2027, when they will need to be renewed, if verification of contact information is provided to the certification administrator, SpaceTEC Partners, Inc.

Those choosing not to submit verification within the six-month window will have their certification suspended and an examination equivalent to the original will be required to reinstate the certification.
